3:54:38 PM	from Craig Patterson to All Panelists:	this is another great area of discussion as there are cultural differences in international schools that adds another twist to this problem/challenge
3:55:02 PM	from Craig Patterson to All Panelists:	meaning how much "we" collaborate..or are open to it
3:55:19 PM	from Kishari Sing to All Participants:	Has anyone had the experience of someone turning down a request for peer coaching? Is it mostly just from fear of change?

3:56:47 PM	from Sophia Sophia to All Participants:	I deal with a lot of teachers who just "smile and nod" when I suggest
3:57:28 PM	from Sophia Sophia to All Participants:	it is very sad that sharing is not seen as a threat :-{
3:58:21 PM	from Kishari Sing to All Participants:	I think it's a usual change management problem. But especially for schools, success will help convince the nonbelievers. As in "I see how awesome your class is! What are you doing different that's making such a difference?"
3:59:56 PM	from Kishari Sing to All Participants:	Admins need to not only encourage coaching, but model it to show the value ASAP. Otherwise it's "just another thing I have to learn"
4:00:02 PM	from Luiza Holtzberg to All Participants:	Good coaches can evoke the desire from someone to be open to change and growth.

4:01:34 PM	from Vicki Sullivan to All Participants:	A coach I observed was able to offer an option to "I don't have time," He invited to the teacher to identify something to take off their own plate in order to create some time.and space.
4:03:42 PM	from Lillian Galicia to All Participants:	Anna...do you have any resources you can share regarding the coaching conversations you hold?
4:04:02 PM	from Lillian Galicia to All Participants:	Awesome! Thank you!!!
4:04:14 PM	from Sophia Sophia to All Participants:	Yes..thank you!
4:04:24 PM	from Luiza Holtzberg to All Participants:	The coaches mindset is also very important and having an open mind is very very important. Coaches need to be able to listen and engage in a "dance" with the teacher being observed or coached.
4:05:25 PM	from Vicki Sullivan to All Participants:	Love the power in the action of the coach collecting the data the teacher asks for and then during the post observation hands the data back to the teacher!

4:07:46 PM	from Katherine Evenson to All Participants:	The focus of the February 2015, JSD is coaching. Many helpful articles http://learningforward.org/publications/blog/jsd/2015/02/03/jsd-february-2015-coaching#.VYMkkRNViko
4:08:24 PM	from amy conforth to All Participants:	Role Playing Coaching conversations was very helpful this year. We also asked teachers to "borrow" their class for a lesson to be observed by our fellow coaches. The team of coaches then met afterwards and had a group debrief. Soo helpful in building our own capacity as individuals and as a team.
