A black and white photograph of a construction site. A wooden floor is covered with a blueprint, a hammer, a saw, and various construction debris. The scene is dimly lit, with a strong light source from the right creating a bright, high-contrast area. The title 'RESTRUCTURING SCHOOLS' is overlaid in large, bold, black letters across the bottom half of the image.

The momentum for restructuring schools comes from disparate sources: determined leaders in the field, dedicated teachers, governors, even social/demographic changes. The task for educators and policy makers is to view the past as a starting point, not as a model, as we look forward to the 21st century. Only then can we fuse the energy from all the sources to redesign and reorder schools for the benefit of students. Prop fabrication by Sam Hanks. Photograph by Dennis Johnson. Design by Al Way.
